

KRUEGER-JACOBS

Herman Krueger and Johanna Jacobs lived in Baychester, Bronx, New York. Although they were married around 1878, they are not found in the 1880 census. They did not have any children.¹

Herman Krueger was born in November 1857 in Germany. He immigrated to New York in 1877, about one year before he married Johanna. Johanna Jacobs was born January 1854 in Germany, daughter of Germans Ludwig Jacobs and Kassline Pfeffer. She immigrated to New York in 1877 also.

Herman Krueger was a saloon keeper. In 1900 he and his wife lived in a house without a number on Baychester Avenue. They lived next door to the owner of the neighborhood bar, John Stark¹. By 1910 they had moved to a house on Wright Avenue². Unfortunately, Herman died on February 10, 1911 in the Bronx, New York. He was buried at Fresh Pond, Long Island, Queens, New York.³

Johanna eventually moved to a house she owned at 2210 Boller Avenue⁴, where we find her in 1925, and where she stayed until her death on December 21, 1941. She was buried at Fern Cliff Crematorium in Westchester County, New York⁵, 30 years after her husband had died.

There were several Kruegers living in Baychester over the decades. There was probably a relationship between them and Herman Krueger.
